THE TAXES.

Two years of exorbitant taxation have brought the city to a deplorable condition. Before a man buys real estate he invariably inquires as to the taxes. If these are low and reasonable the inclination is to purchase. If they are high the would-be buyer at once begins to flounder. He makes a computation and ascertains how much it will cost him to hold the property. If he desires the place for himself, he thinks the matter over and finally concludes whether or not he can afford to own the property. If he intends to sell again he calculates the risk he is running of having the property "eat itself up" before he can dispose of it. Of course, the tightness of the money market has something to do with the falling off in real estate transactions, but the extortionate taxes have also much to do with the dullness. A man can better afford to pay the high rent prevailing for houses than own the property, the taxes in many instances amounting to a pretty stiff rental, to say nothing of the loss of the use of the money tied up in the house and lot. Again, the capital invested in industries and financial institutions is being taxed to such an extent that we might as well stop talking about inviting men to fetch their money here for investment. If any one doubts this let him propose to capitalists the organization of a bank or the increase of the capital stock of one of the existing banks; let him suggest a joint stock company of any character, the capital of which can be reached by the city assessors; the proposition would be scouted, and the sanity of the man making it would be called in question.

Outrageous as the taxation is this year, the council has refused to lower it, notwithstanding the popular indignation, every member of the body knowing at the same time that the action is a sickening blow at the prosperity of the city. It looks as if the majority of the council were desperate and determined to bid the matter through, regardless of the disastrous effect. Under these circumstances ought not the property owners to take some action for the protection of themselves and the salvation of the city? Can our people afford to have it go about that only the rich can afford to own property in Salt Lake? Can we afford to give notice to capitalists that if they invest in this city it will be at the risk of being taxed to death?

The Baltimore Herald says that "in spite of all efforts to sidetrack him it is quite apparent that Mr. CLEVELAND is still in the lead of the Democratic procession." So long as the sidetracking efforts are continued to the Republican press and politicians it is not probable that Mr. CLEVELAND will lose his position in the march.

It is said that the white wash will be laid on thickly at the city council meeting this evening.

DON'T WANT HARRISON.

Montana Republicans appear to be somewhat exercised over a recent article in the Helena Journal, which is regarded as a covert stab at Mr. BLAINE. The article derives its importance from its appearing conspicuously on the editorial page of Mr. RUSSELL HARRISON's paper. Its burden is that the Republicans who are advocating BLAINE for the presidency are doing him an injury; that the Maine man is a sick man, breaking down from a complication of diseases; that he cannot afford to risk his vitality against the demands of the politicians; that if he were well he would be in the Ohio campaign; and that it will be time enough to talk about him as the leader of his party in 1900 when he shall have publicly exhibited his physical ability to conduct a canvass.

Young Mr. HARRISON is making a tremendous effort to wheel Montana into line for his honored progenitor. But his contract is too big. Among the people of that state there is nothing in common with the present chief magistrate. His administrative policy doesn't suit them, and he is not their kind of a man. They regard him as Pecksniffian in plot, bigoted, boorish, snappish, little in mind as well as in stature, and with no such breadth of view as belongs to a statesman. They don't want him for President, and they won't have him, if they can help it. BLAINE satisfies them, and if they cannot get him, they will put up with anybody but HARRISON. Young Mr. H. with his Helena Journal, will have to sit up and take his medicine. The Montana delegation will not be for the present incumbent.

MR. FIRST ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL CLARKSON, that was, is said to be interested in the automatic dispatch company with which the postoffice department is about to experiment in Philadelphia. Postmaster-General WAXAMAKER's home. By the way, at WAXAMAKER's store the small bundle delivery business is very large.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN has nominated RUSSELL HARRISON for the presidency, and, as young Mr. HARRISON has a newspaper, he ought to return the compliment. TRAIN may be cracked, but he makes fewer mistakes than Prince RUSSELL.

TEMPERANCE COERCION.

The trouble some point with the Republicans in Iowa and Kansas is their coercive temperance, or prohibition, record. It has been found that their legislation on the subject has been almost a complete failure in the moral aspect; that it has not repressed crime; that it has not lessened the number of drunkards or drinking men; that it has proved an incentive to the importation of poisonous compounds under various evasive names, or the surreptitious sale of adulterated liquors going by genuine titles; that it has driven out capital invested in breweries and brewing materials; and that, without stopping the sale of liquor, it has deprived the cities and counties of needed revenues.

In Kansas and Iowa, as elsewhere, there are no more temperate, peaceable, industrious people than the Germans. The jails and poor-houses contain very few of this class of the population, but with them opposition to enforced teetotalism is "bred in the bone," so to speak, and they may be said to be quite as intolerant of the prohibition legislators as the latter are of the sale and use of intoxicants. If they have been acting with the Republican party it has been because of their love for the traditions of republicanism, often rotting for the name rather than the principle. But the elimination of the slavery question, the decadence of the emitties caused by the war, and the changing of the party to the service of the monopolists of the east, to the detriment of western interests, have brought the thinking men among them to a halt and we may add, to a revolt.

The who has attempted to convert prohibition upon Republicanism, thus putting into general politics an issue which properly belongs to county courts and city councils, do not appear to realize the difference between moral suasion and prohibition on the liquor question—that there are many men in favor of total abstinence who oppose coercion, many temperance men who are not teetotalers. It is this misunderstanding which has not the Iowa and Kansas Republicans into a place where the probability is they will lose both states, although but a few years ago they were among the most reliable for great majorities of any in the country.

GOVERNMENT CONTINUES to pay 98 cents for 129 cents worth of silver, and the Republican politicians and their newspaper organs continue to applaud the law which makes the transaction legal. Queer ideas of honesty some people have.

SAVE THE MONEY of the people and the credit of the city by forbidding the laying of any more brick sidewalks.

REED FLYING THE TRACK.

Mr. TOM REED is undertaking to exercise that liberty which whilst abroad he found so much superior to the American variety. Indeed, he is settling himself up as independent of the Republican party, whose bosoms he has been wont to observe with subservient humility. And, of course, he is being lectured for it. Thus the Chicago Advertiser, a well-known religious journal, publishes a letter from REED to the editor, in which the writer says:

If we must have a tariff to protect our business in New York City, how can we compete with the same rivals after we have shipped our goods to some distant republic in South America? If we cannot compete on equal terms here, it is preposterous to suppose that we can there.

We do not quote the foregoing for its novelty of views, for the question asked is one that has been frequently propounded and never satisfactorily answered by the protectionists. The point is in the inquiry coming from the ex speaker, who has always been regarded as sound as any other northeastern Republican politician on the tariff issues.

But this isn't all. Mr. REED has been expatiating on reciprocity, that darling of the Republicans, and he is being soundly lectured for his position on that subject. Says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat:

The prudent friends of THOMAS B. REED will regret that gentleman's recent utterances on the question of reciprocity. He is reported as saying that arrangements of this sort are "attempts to carry on commerce by diplomacy," and to have added that "the commercial world can only do business on great commercial principles, not on correspondence between state departments."

Evidently the vision of Mr. REED, heretofore limited to a small section of Maine, where everything is "unprotected," and in the semi-circle where congress sits, has been considerably expanded by his recent trip abroad.

THE TELEGRAPH reports secretary NOBLE back at work at the interior department, but what has become of REED? We are afraid the pension business is suffering.

ATTEMPT THE rain-makers have proved the success of their experiments, we should like for some of them to come to Salt Lake and try their hands on making snow.

A GERMAN COURT has decided it is not unlawful to make sausages out of dog-meat, but the product must be labelled when exposed for sale. That is, it must have a collar on it.

THE NEW collector of the port of New York wants to have the civil service law fixed up by the President so he can turn out a number of head clerks and put Senator PLATT's friends in without examination.

AMERICAN ARISTOCRATS.

A correspondent at Gunnison, "in behalf of many Democrats," submits these questions, which he is desirous to have answered by THE HERALD:

1. How has our modern money aristocracy been developed in the United States, particularly in the last thirty years?

2. How has modern serfdom been developed in the United States, particularly in the last thirty years?

3. In various ways. The breaking out of the war in 1861, produced a lot of army contractors, the most of whom got rich. Then followed the raid of the money-lenders and brokers, whose motto was, "a public debt is a public blessing," accompanied by a reign of speculation. "Gold for the bondholder, greenbacks for the plowholder" was the system of finance in vogue. But the most stupendous and gigantic development of money aristocracy was the fruit of the protective tariff. The aggregate capital, individual deposits, undivided profits, etc., of all the banks and financial institutions of the country are by a report of the comptroller of the currency, over $5,500,000,000. Of this sum $3,000,000,000 were, in round numbers, assigned to the nine protected manufacturing states, and $2,500,000,000 to all the other states and territories. The nine manufacturing states have a population of 17,320,000, whilst the rest of the country has 45,385,000—three times as many people against half as much money. In this comparison Rhode Island beats Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, with twenty times the population; and Massachusetts beats Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, Illinois and Indiana, with five times the population.

The nine protected states—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—found in millions and ten-millions. Colossal fortunes made in manufacturing are almost as common as mortgaged farms in the west. We hardly know what is meant by "modern serfdom" in the United States. A serf, according to WEBSTER, is "one bound to work on a certain estate and thus attached to the soil, and sold with it into the service of another." There is, as our correspondent knows, no such serfdom in this country. Occasionally the relation of labor to capital is, in our flexible language, applied figuratively as representing a sort of serfdom, but the term is inappropriate. In modern days, labor is quite as independent as capital, though it does not enjoy all of its rights, perhaps.

THE DEVELOPMENT of Alliance farmers in the south delights the Republican organs. Ah, yes; yet the farmers are not only "marching through Georgia," but are on the double quick through Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Illinois and Massachusetts— which fact is not so comforting to them.

EXPLODING AT THE BREACH.

Last week we noticed the fact of the removal to Bridgeport, Conn., of one of the largest silk and plush manufacturers in the world. Now we have a London dispatch saying that the great firm of LESTON & SONS have abandoned their old locations, and are about to erect tin works in the United States. The telegram adds:

This is regarded by many as the beginning of a general movement of tin plate and allied industries from Great Britain to America, a result of the new American tariff on tin plate.

It is the advocates of low prices, the opponents of high tariff, who rejoice at intelligence like the foregoing. Such news falls with a "dull thud" upon the Republicans and other capitalists who expect to amass great riches from a monopoly of the tin-plate business, all drawn from the American people. It is evident the tariff tinkers have far overdone the thing of protecting incipient industries, and, instead of fostering American enterprise, have invited the schooled and skilled manufacturers of Europe to compete with them. If over-production ensues, the natural consequence will be a reduction of prices to consumers. Meantime, what becomes of the government revenues from import duties on such articles formerly manufactured abroad on which, we were told, the tariff was not prohibitive?

INFORMATION FROM South Dakota is to the effect that the vacancy in the congressional delegation caused by the death of JOHN R. GAMBLE is likely to be filled by the election of Judge BARTLETT THOMP through a fusion of the Democrats and Alliance men. Judge THOMP was the Democratic candidate for United States Senator last winter, and was beaten by J. H. KYLE, the nominee of the Farmers' Alliance.

It is to be hoped that the galloping trips of the ocean greyhounds will smother nothing more serious than records. One snuffers to think of what may be the awful result of these speed-trials some day.

MCKINLEY OPENED his campaign in Ohio last Saturday. It is safe to say he did not use a tin can opener.

A REPUBLICAN paper says no man can be elected President in 1900 who permits himself to be boomed by the QUAT type of patriots. But this type of patriots are booming BLAINE.

THERE are indications that the Ohio farmers understand the iniquitous features of the MCKINLEY tariff bill. The fact that it was passed on purpose to help the Eastern manufacturers add to their colossal fortunes has been so clearly demonstrated there can be no longer room for doubt.

THERE NEVER has been a political party so thoroughly demoralized as the Republican party. No other in the history of the country has ever been guilty of so many and such grave mistakes, and no party can or should succeed that endorses such dangerous measures.

A CONTEMPORARY in New York speaks of Mr. CLEVELAND as "the man in the moon." He is certainly not the man in the sea.

SUPERINTENDENT PORTER has estimated that it will cost $2,000,000 more to complete the census, and he will ask Congress to vote that amount. Congressmen whose cities have been slighted by the enumerators are leading themselves with hair-lifting speeches to fire at the superintendent when he asks for the money.

THE AMERICAN railroads employ 3,000,000 men, nine tenths of whom belong to unions or labor organizations of some kind.

SOMETHING NEW.

AN AMERICANIZED EDITION OF THE ENCYCLOPEDIA BRITANNICA—For more than a year past the publishers have been collecting data for this great work, the compilation and arrangement of which have been directed by gentlemen whose ability and experience encourage the belief that the publication is in all respects an invaluable acquisition. It is contained in ten large volumes, each subject being completely and comprehensively, yet so correctly and concisely, presented as to promote the highest success of the work as a standard authority upon the topics treated. Readers, commentators, students, professional men and the public will thus be furnished with the largest measure of information in respect to science, art, literature, the law, and kindred subjects in a condensed but attractive form and without the elimination of any fact necessary to a fair statement of the case under consideration. Useless verbiage has been guarded against, and inconsequential speculation and vain repetition have been avoided. In a word, space has been suited to the subject, and the subject to the space appropriated for its treatment. Matters of interest fifty years ago, but now of comparative little consequence, have been "cut down to the bone," while the achievements of modern days in all the departments of life are given precedence. In addition to information of a general character, the work contains a complete list of American cities, together with a history of each; also reliable facts regarding their financial, social and educational advantages, manufacturing facilities, productions, population and other facts of importance and value. Biographical sketches of distinguished Americans, living and dead, brought down to date, are made a feature of the work, including those who figured during the Civil war and in other great movements. An additional feature that will commend itself is the incorporation of a series of ninety-six explanatory maps, showing every country in the world, with a separate map of every State in the Union, highly colored and revised and corrected up to the latest date. In addition to these, each volume is embellished with cuts and illustrations. The typographical work is of the best character, the volumes handsomely and substantially bound. The enterprise and public spirit to which the public is indebted for this library of information deserves the fullest complement of recognition and practical acknowledgment. Recognizing the great advantages of this invaluable work of reference, we have obtained the exclusive control of this "Americanized Encyclopedia Britannica" for this section, and offer it on the following easy terms in connection with one year's subscription to our paper:

We will give THE DAILY HERALD one year and the set of Encyclopedias for $30, $25 and $20 per month till paid; THE SUNDAY HERALD and the set for $23.00, and THE SEMI-WEEKLY HERALD and the set (with a premium receipt) for $23.00, also in monthly payments if desired. A discount of 5 per cent will be given for cash. The above offer is for the Encyclopedias in cloth binding; sheep binding $3.50 per set extra; half morocco, $5.00 per set extra. These valuable books will be obtained by subscribing for THE HERALD. The sets are now on hand, and we will be pleased to show samples to any one who will call at our office.
